Proposal to create real community notification & hearing process moves forward in NYS budget talks

Albany, NY — Residents in The Bronx have been outraged when a homeless hotel, motel or shelter opens without notice.

But under a proposal advancing in the New York State budget, pushed by Senator Jeff Klein (D-Bronx/Westchester), and his colleagues in the Independent Democratic Conference, the City would be required to give elected officials, community groups and residents ample time to provide insight on shelter siting.

“The Bronx has been a dumping ground for shelters due to a lack of foresight and planning for the city’s homeless population. Residents here are simply fed up by the lack of notification, hearings and planning. This lack of transparency needs to end. Communities deserve notification and to have a say in what’s happening in the neighborhoods they care about,” said Senator Klein.

Under the IDC proposal advancing in this year’s budget, communities would have a greater amount of input on the placement of shelters within their communities than they would under the plan announced by the Mayor’s Office. Rather than community notification 30 days prior to the opening of a permanent shelter, the proposal gives communities notice 45 days before the Mayor's Office of Contract Services hearings. The legislation would also empower local community boards to request public hearings on a shelter. DHS would be required to modify its proposal based on reasonable concerns from such hearings.

For temporary shelters the proposal requires notification one week from the city's use of the hotel as a shelter, and requires DHS perform inspections to ensure sites are safe and free of violations. They must also maintain a publicly available list of these sites. The legislation also requires a quarterly report from DHS on the use and proposed use of these sites to be submitted to local elected officials. Because many times hotels are used for weather related emergencies, the legislation allows for 48 hour post placement notification in the event of an emergency situation.

The IDC is also advocating for the inclusion of the Home Stability Support program in the budget. This comprehensive initiative would provide a statewide rent supplement for families and individuals who are facing eviction, are currently homeless or who have lost housing due to domestic violence and/or hazardous conditions.

In January, Senator Klein and the Independent Democratic Conference released an investigative report, "Horrors in Homeless Housing," detailing the conditions inside the hotels and cluster sites used for homeless housing. The city announced a five year phase out of these sites and a proposal to open 90 additional permanent shelters soon after.

The report listed the top ten worst offenders in both categories, with sites that had violations for issues such as rodent and roach infestations, mold, lead paint, unlawful cooking areas and failure to install smoke and carbon monoxide detectors.
