Senator Shelley Mayer said, "Each new school year is a time of excitement and promise for teachers as well as students. In order for students and teachers to have successful and rewarding school years, they must have access to essential school and classroom supplies. I am grateful to my partners at United Way of Westchester and Putnam for recognizing this need and for helping to ensure that students and teachers throughout our district begin this new year on strong footing and I appreciate the tremendous generosity of our community."

United Way of Westchester and Putnam President and CEO, Tom Gabriel, said, "Every summer, we see thousands of children who need backpacks and school supplies, and this need is only growing as rising costs impact household budgets. We are excited to partner with Senator Mayer to provide students and teachers the tools they need for a successful school year."
