| ISSUE: MATERNAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH

On the 51st Anniversary of Roe v. Wade Decision the Senate Democratic Majority is Advancing Landmark Legislation to Strengthen New Yorkers' Reproductive Rights and Improve Maternal Health

(Binghamton, NY) Senator Lea Webb (SD 52) and the Senate Democratic Majority advanced landmark legislation to strengthen reproductive rights and improve maternal health outcomes for all New Yorkers. On the 51st anniversary of Roe v. Wade decision, the New York Senate Democratic Conference built on its long standing work to protect abortion rights and expand access to reproductive care in New York. Abortion care is an essential component of the reproductive health continuum and at a time when abortion bans are proliferating across the country, the U.S. maternal mortality crisis has continued to worsen with a maternal mortality rate that is three times higher than other high income nations. The U.S. maternal mortality rate is even higher for Black women, who are nearly three times more likely to die from a pregnancy-related cause than White women. (Senator Webb's Press Conference Remarks HERE)

This package features legislation to strengthen New Yorkers' privacy rights by requiring companies that collect and sell healthcare information to receive affirmative consent by users to sell such information to third parties; establishes a Reproductive Freedom and Equity Grant Program to ensure access to abortion care across the state and enacts the Hospital Transparency Act. This package includes a Workgroup on Maternal Health Care and Birthing Standards, stronger protections for pregnant individuals during special enrollment periods for healthcare insurance; authorizes the New York State Department of Health to create a pregnancy mobile App and directs the agency to include maternal death data disaggregated by race in pregnancy informational materials. In addition, this slate of bills includes legislation to allow doulas to enter operating rooms in hospitals and guarantee birthing individuals access to their doulas in healthcare facilities; requires healthcare providers to offer a maternal depression screening to new mothers; establishes an uterine fibroid education awareness campaign through the Department of Health and bans carcinogenic substances from menstrual products.

Said Senator Lea Webb, Chair of the Senate Womens' Issues Committee, "I am extremely proud of the work we are doing to increase access to quality maternal and reproductive health care in New York. We know that these issues disproportionately impact people of color and rural communities, which often experience poor health outcomes. This package of legislation will make sure that everyone gets equitable access to comprehensive healthcare including but not limited to timely prenatal care, safe birthing experiences, comprehensive postpartum care, and reproductive health services. This is another win in New York's fight for reproductive rights and access, and an important step towards more equitable maternal health care throughout our state."
