WHEREAS, The six permanent objects of Kiwanis international are to: give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than to the material values of life; encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships; promote the adoption and the application of higher social, business, and professional standards; develop, by precept and example, a more intelligent, aggressive, and serviceable citizenship; provide, through Kiwanis clubs, a practical means to form enduring friendships, to render altruistic service, and to build better communities; and cooperate in creating and maintaining that sound public opinion and high idealism which make possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism, and goodwill; and

WHEREAS, The first Kiwanis Club in the New York district was chartered on May 1, 1916, in Rochester; its first president was attorney George F. Hixson who served for two years, the only person to do so; and

WHEREAS, During George F. Hixson's tenure, the Kiwanis Club became an international organization by chartering a club in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada; he played key roles in the early years of Kiwanis while the organization was transformed from a commercial to a community service organization; and

WHEREAS, The second convention held on September 25, 1919, in Elmira, New York, was attended by only seven Kiwanians; due to the rapid growth of the organization, 455 Kiwanians attended the third district convention in 1920, which took place in Utica; and
