Senator Alesi Helps to Pass Leandra's Law

JAMES S. ALESI December 21, 2009

| ISSUE: CRIME, CONTROLLED SUBSTANCES, ALCOHOL, DRUNK DRIVING

As one of the strongest advocates of discouraging drunk driving, Senator Alesi helped to pass Leandra's Law, which creates a new crime of Aggravated Driving While Intoxicated with a child as a passenger. Senator Alesi was the sponsor of New York State's toughest repeat offender DWI laws.

“While I am saddened that it took the death of a child to make a bill like Leandra's Law a reality, I am honored to be a part of this historic legislation.” Senator Alesi stated. “I am encouraged that this law goes a step further to ensuring the safety of minors by requiring all individuals convicted of misdemeanor and felony DWI offenses to install and maintain an ignition interlock device in their vehicle.”
