Western New York's new senator to launch program to connect directly to constituents in their communities

CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. – The Cheektowaga Senior Center will be the first site for Senator Timothy M. Kennedy's new constituent services program, "Senator on Your Street." Senator Kennedy will visit the senior center Thursday, February 10, and his next stops will be Hamburg Town Hall on Friday, February 11; the Autumnwood Senior Center on Thursday, February 17; and the West Seneca Senior Center on Friday, February 18.

A representative from Senator Kennedy's office will be available on site to meet with constituents and address any community concerns. Senator Kennedy will also join residents to answer questions, listen to constituents' concerns and provide any help he can with state programs and agencies.

"We want to do everything we can to connect directly with hardworking Western New Yorkers, and our 'Senator on Your Street' program is the first initiative we're launching to foster an open dialogue between the community and our office," Senator Kennedy said. "We want to bring our office right to the hardworking families of our district and meet with them in their neighborhood, on their street and at their front doorstep.

"I hope you'll bring your questions and concerns to our 'Senator on Your Street' program, when we visit your street," he added.
