Senator George Maziarz (R-C, Newfane) today acknowledged the positive impact that substantial awards from the Regional Economic Development Council initiative will have in the Niagara Region. The awards were revealed by Governor Andrew Cuomo and legislative leaders this morning in Albany.

“This has been a great week for economic development in Western New York,” Senator Maziarz said.

“On Wednesday the Legislature enacted a plan to cut income taxes for the middle class, cut corporate taxes for manufacturers, and create an investment fund to support infrastructure projects throughout Upstate New York. Today we are celebrating more than $8.7 million being awarded to eighteen different initiatives in Niagara County. These awards will lead to job creation, tourism promotion, and quality of life enhancements for our residents.”

The Western New York Region—which comprises Niagara, Erie, Chautauqua, Cattaraugus, and Allegheny Counties—came away as a big winner in the competition for economic development dollars made possible through the 2011-2012 state budget. In total, the region was recognized as a “best plan” awardee with $100.3 million to be allocated for 96 projects.

In a surprise announcement, legislative leaders also announced a commitment to include funds for another round of funding for economic development initiatives in next year’s state budget. Negotiations for the 2012-2013 spending plan will begin in earnest early next year after the start of the regular Legislative Session in January.

Senator Maziarz said, “We will continue to work hard, in a bipartisan fashion, to take big strides forward in strengthening our economy. We will keep our focus on improving the climate for doing business in Western New York and building on our regional assets, as we’ve done this week.”
