Two Upcoming Adirondack Festivals Showcase Local Talents and Culture

HUGH T. FARLEY July 18, 2013

State Senator Hugh T. Farley (R, C, I – Schenectady) is pleased to alert people to report two events being held this weekend in his district that highlight Adirondack activities and talent.

“Starting Friday, July 19th, the annual Northville Rotary Woodworking & Fine Arts Weekend will be held at the Town Park on Main Street,” Senator Farley said. “The festival starts with an artists’ reception on Friday and continues on Saturday and Sunday with music, vendors and more.”

For more information on the festival nestled in the foothills of the Adirondacks, visit <http://www.northvillenyny.com/> and www.northvillerotary.com.

New this year in the Indian Lake region of the Adirondacks is the Adirondack Challenge, Senator Farley reported. Boat races will be held on Sunday, July 21st, but there are numerous festival and other events and activities on both Saturday, July 20th, and Sunday, July 21st. Visitors are also welcome to tour local attractions like the Adirondack Museum in nearby Blue Mountain Lake.

“I grew up in Indian Lake and love the area,” Senator Farley said. “It is certainly the place to be if you love the outdoors.”
