The main focus of the four hearings will be to review reforms embarked upon in 2010 by the New York State Board of Regents known as the Regents Reform Agenda. This agenda was designed to prepare students for college and 21st century careers, close the achievement gap and instill a lifelong love of learning in children.

As these reforms are implemented by the Board of Regents, questions and concerns continue to be raised about the impact these changes will have on students throughout the state. While the reforms were initiated by the Board of Regents, it is critical to Senator Flanagan and the Education Committee that the State review the new policies and maintain an open dialogue about the future of state education policy.

The hearings will focus primarily on several major issues including state assessments, the implementation of common core state standards and the protection of student privacy.

“This series of hearings will allow us to gather input on how recent changes in New York’s education policies have impacted New York school children. It is important to ascertain which policies are working well and which ones are in need of improvement so that our students can achieve the highest levels of academic and career success. We must maintain an open dialogue with educators, students, parents, school administrators and other officials so that we can work together to move forward in a way that will benefit the children of our state,” stated Senator Flanagan.

Members of the public and the educational community are welcome to attend the meetings and oral testimony will be by invitation only. Written testimony will be accepted throughout the course of the hearings and can be submitted by clicking here or via email at flanagan@nysenate.gov.
