Stickers Help Alert Firefighters that there are Animals in the House In Case of a Fire

Senator Jack Martins (R-7th Senate District) is informing residents that his office has free pet rescue alert stickers available to help them protect their pets in an emergency situation.

The pet rescue alert sticker can be placed on a homeowner's window or door to notify firefighters that there are animals in the home in the event of a fire. Residents can list the number, type, and names of pets they have so firefighters will know exactly how many animals are in the home.
