Senator Sanders Attends Prayer Vigil for South Jamaica Murder Victim

JAMES SANDERS JR. April 7, 2015

Senator Sanders joined dozens of residents as the community mourned the loss of Leta Webb, the 70 year-old grandmother slain in South Jamaica. She was fatally shot after she answered a knock on her door in the middle of the night on March 31, 2015. No one was immediately arrested in connection with the crime.

"You're seeing people come together to say, 'This cannot go on,'" Senator Sanders said. "This type of madness needs to stop. There should be no shelter for the person who committed this crime."

The prayer vigil, which took place outside the victim's home on 119th Avenue at 153rd Street, was organized through the efforts of the Rev. Phil Craig of the Greater Springfield Community Church and community activist Kevin Livingston, founder of 100 Suits for 100 Men.

Anyone with information on the shooter's identity or whereabouts is asked to call Crime Stoppers at 1 (800) 577-TIPS (8477). The public also can submit tips at nypdcrimestoppers.com or by texting 274637 (CRIMES), then entering TIP577. All tips are strictly confidential.
