Senator Boyle believes that elected officials should be readily available to their constituents. That's why one of the first things he has done as a new State Senator is to create a "One on One With Your Senator" program. These meetings provide constituents the opportunity to meet one on one with Senator Boyle in their own neighborhood to discuss concerns they have about government issues.

If you need assistance with government services, have questions about government programs, or would like to express concerns about a particular issue, Senator Boyle invites you to share them with him when he visits your neighborhood.
