The Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse

TERRY GIPSON July 24, 2013

The Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse provides a variety of programs and services designed to address the many causes of child abuse before it occurs. At our meeting Kathleen Murphy Executive Director of The Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse and many others who work at the center discussed the programs that the facility offers to protect our youth. Each year, they serve more than 15,000 abused and at-risk children and provide support and education services to more than 3,000 adults. Currently they are looking to expand to a larger building and they are in the process of a major capital campaign. To find out how you can help donate to their project see the link below.
