Governor Andrew Cuomo has unveiled his new executive budget proposal for the 2014-2015 fiscal year.

For the past three years, the state senate has successfully worked with the governor to enact on-time budgets that achieve my key goals of cutting taxes, holding the line on spending, creating jobs, and investing in key areas like education and the environment.

This year, my senate colleagues and I are again looking forward to negotiating a soundly balanced, on-time state budget that keeps our state moving forward, and that reflects the priorities and aspirations of all New Yorkers.

By clicking on the "Get The Facts" link below, you can review a wide array of documents related to the governor's budget proposal, including briefing books and specific budget bills.

As we now begin our open, public process of carefully reviewing the governor's proposal, your views and input on his budget plan are critical. So whether your top priority is cutting taxes, helping small businesses, or increasing investment in key areas like education or environmental protection, your opinions are always greatly appreciated.
