Crain's OpEd on Childcare Advance

DANIEL L. SQUADRON March 17, 2016

| ISSUE: CHILDCARE ADVANCE, CHILD CARE, PARENTS & FAMILIES, TAXES, CHILDREN

The logo for Crain's New York Business. It features the word "CRAIN'S" in a large, bold, white sans-serif font. Below it is a thin white horizontal line, and then the words "NEW YORK BUSINESS" in a smaller, white, all-caps sans-serif font.

Check out my Crain's New York OpEd on my Childcare Advance proposal:

New parents should have a tax-advantaged plan like savers for college and retirement do

q

As the middle class gets ever more squeezed, families are told to take advantage of tax-advantaged, long-term investing—18 years to fund a 529 college savings plan, or an entire working life to contribute to a retirement account."

q

Government is right to use the tax code to help families plan for expensive and aspirational events many years in the future, from college to retirement. It should do more to help manage huge costs that are created without much time to plan, especially when they are as important to parents, children, and all of us, as high-quality child care. That's why the "Childcare Advance" is so important—to help families with the middle-class squeeze before they are squeezed out of the middle class right at the start."
