| ISSUE: PRESIDENTS' DAY

Did you know that a number of United States Presidents have been closely associated with the history of New York State?

Martin Van Buren, Millard Fillmore, Chester Arthur, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt were all New Yorkers. So is current President Donald J. Trump. Presidents Van Buren, Cleveland and both Roosevelts each served as Governor of New York.

The Hall of Governors, located on the second floor of the State Capitol, holds portraits of the past governors of New York State, including the ones who went on to be United States presidents. All portraits in the Hall of Governors are displayed chronologically and biographies of each pictured governor are placed beneath each portrait. A timeline was also installed on the walls to provide historical context.

The website <http://hallofgovernors.ny.gov> provides historical documentation and offers an online tour of the Hall of Governors. Web visitors can also listen to highlights from speeches and view writings of former governors. It's an amazing resource for students and history buffs alike.

The following Presidential facts and trivia offer a salute to Presidents' Day:

February is observed as the month for presidents because two of the great Presidents from the early years of our Nation's history were born this month. Abraham Lincoln, the 16th President of the United States and the leader who guided our Nation through the Civil War, and George Washington, the first President and the leader who guided our fledgling Nation toward her independence, were born on February 12th and February 22nd, respectively.

Did you know that we used to celebrate federal holidays on both Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays until 1971? At that time, the federal government determined that the third Monday of the month (this year it is February 20th) would be a holiday to not only celebrate these two birthdays, but to honor all of our past Presidents.

Incidentally, President Ronald Reagan's birthday was also in February -- February 6, 1911, to be exact.

The following is a list of the Presidents of the United States:

1. George Washington, 1789-1797

KEEPING IT IN THE FAMILY...

Taking a quick look through the list of Presidents, did you notice several last names seem to be repeating themselves?

John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, was the first President who was the son of a President. His father, John Adams, was the second President of this Nation. The 43rd President, George Walker Bush, was also a son of a President, George Herbert Walker Bush (41st President).

Benjamin Harrison, the 23rd President, was the grandson of our ninth President, William Henry Harrison.

Theodore Roosevelt, the 26th President of the United States, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, our 32nd President, were cousins.

HMMM...I NOTICE GROVER CLEVELAND IS ON THE LIST TWICE

No, that's not a typo. Grover Cleveland was indeed elected President in 1884 and took office in 1885. After four years at the post, he lost the following election to Benjamin Harrison. The two went head-to-head again in 1892, and this time, Cleveland became the winner and resumed the Presidency in 1893.

WHO WAS THE YOUNGEST PRESIDENT?

Most people think John Fitzgerald Kennedy was the youngest President in our history. This is partially true. At age 44, he was the youngest person to be elected President. Theodore Roosevelt, at age 43, was the youngest President to take the oath of office. When William McKinley was assassinated in 1901, Vice President Roosevelt became the leader of this Nation. He was subsequently elected in his own right in 1904.
