BACKGROUND

Over the last four months, Senator Benjamin and the Harlem community have steadfastly stood with the students and parents of Wadleigh's middle school to fight the DOE's proposed truncation of the middle school. Senator Benjamin's efforts to date include:

- Joined students and parents in community meetings, small meetings with the DOE, a public hearing, and community rallies, including a student-led rally.
- Sent a letter to former Chancellor Carmen Fariña with New York City Comptroller Scott Stringer asking for more information about how this decision was reached.
- Introduced legislation, S8001, to require a majority vote of the State Senator, Assembly member, member of the House of Representatives, Borough President, and City Council member who represent a school to approve proposed school closings or significant changes in school utilization.
- Participated in a recent meeting with Mayor Bill de Blasio and new Chancellor Richard Carranza and other elected officials, where he proposed Wadleigh Middle School collaboration concept with FDA II that was reviewed and accepted by the Mayor and DOE.

Wadleigh is a long-standing Harlem institution that provides the students access to a unique arts education in a historic arts incubator. Wadleigh's truncation proposal was scheduled for a vote with the Panel for Educational Policy (PEP) on Wednesday, April 25th, and was pulled from the agenda prior to the PEP hearing.
