“As Chair of the Higher Education Committee, I am proud to say that our state, along with sixteen other states and the District of Columbia, were unified in opposition to the Trump Administration’s disgraceful new rules for foreign students. Rescinding these divisive, politically motivated policies is a victory for students and colleges and universities across the country, who can now continue to focus on what is most important during this COVID-19 crisis: the health and safety of our students, faculty and staff.”
