of his dedication and service.

“This is a wonderful honor for me and my family. It’s also an opportunity to inspire future leaders of this great nation,” said Senior Chief Boatswain Mate Kevin Nolan about being selected as one of this year’s honorees. “Sailors should not follow you because they have to ... they should follow you because they were inspired to. The sacrifices that Kevin and his family have made for us, while he is serving our country, are greatly appreciated. I was honored to be able to make today a special moment for Kevin and his wife, even though they could not be together, giving them the chance to see each other and celebrate this award together,” said Senator Martinez.

The event was attended by a strong representation of the Suffolk County Police Department command staff, showing the profound respect and appreciation they too have for Police Officer Nolan’s service. Commissioners Geraldine Hart and James Skopek were joined by Chief of Department Stuart Cameron and Chief of Patrol Robert Brown, as well as members of the Suffolk County Police Veterans Association for today’s ceremony.
