Senator Biaggi and the Senate Majority Pass Legislation to Combat Domestic Violence and Human Trafficking

ALESSANDRA BIAGGI May 13, 2021

ALBANY, NY – This week, Senator Biaggi and the Senate Democratic Majority advanced a legislative package to support survivors of domestic violence and combat human trafficking in New York State that builds on the Conference’s continued work to provide greater protections for those impacted by domestic violence and the horrors of human trafficking. This package relieves survivors of domestic violence from utility contracts, expands eligibility for the “Non-Parent” Grant, seizes firearms from perpetrators, expands the statute of limitations on domestic violence claims, aids prosecutors in identifying repeat offenders, and protects the voting records of victims of sexual and domestic violence.

In addition, this legislative package requires public posting of human trafficking information, mandates state contractors to submit human trafficking prevention statements, expands the statute of limitations on human trafficking claims, and establishes human trafficking recognition training for all lodging employees. This package also includes legislation to enact the New York State Transparency in Supply Chains Act, and increase the legal marriage age to 18.

State Senator Alessandra Biaggi (D-Bronx/Westchester) issued the following statement:

"Domestic violence and human trafficking are pervasive issues across New York State, and it is critical that we empower and protect survivors.
