With New York City beginning to rebound from the COVID-19 pandemic, jobs are starting to come back, and State Senator Joseph P. Addabbo, Jr. is partnering with the Jewish Board of Family and Children's Services for a virtual hiring event this June.

On Tuesday, June 8, from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m., residents can join the Zoom session to speak one-on-one with a representative from the Jewish Board to find out more about their available positions. According to the Jewish Board, they are looking to fill in-person positions at their Far Rockaway locations.

The open positions with the Jewish Board of Family and Children's Services are:

- Bilingual Direct Support Professionals;
- Bilingual/Non Bilingual Case Associates;
- Social Work supervisor.

In addition to the hiring event, during the Zoom call, from 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., the Jewish Board will be holding a seminar on virtual interview tips and strategies for those interested in sharpening their interview skills.

"We are starting to come out of the shutdowns across the city, however, as companies prepare to bring back workers and open new positions, many jobs may still opt for holding virtual interviews," Addabbo noted. "Having the skills needed to impress during a virtual interview process could mean the difference in getting the job or not. I encourage those who are looking for a job to sign up for this great virtual event. My thanks go out to the Jewish Board of Family and Children's Services for holding this hiring event."
