KINGSTON, NY – Senator Michelle Hinchey wrapped up her second legislative session in the New York State Senate, maintaining her record as one of the most active and effective members, known for her ability to get critical legislation passed for the communities she represents and New Yorkers statewide. During the 2022 session, 35 of Senator Hinchey’s bills passed the Senate with 71% passing unanimously and 23 passing both the Senate and Assembly. Hinchey's legislative initiatives covered a diverse range of issues, from protecting students from the opioid crisis to expanding home repairs for low-income seniors to launching New York's legal cannabis market and ensuring that solar development fees are used for farmland preservation.

"I came to Albany to fight for our upstate communities and to bring home real results. My legislative initiatives, and their record of strong bipartisan support, speak directly to the issues that I was elected to address. I'm proud of everything I've delivered this year and I'm excited that 22 of my bills are now on their way to the Governor's desk for signature," Senator Hinchey said. "I advanced a transformative bill to jumpstart New York's cannabis market, inaugurating a new industry for our state predicated on social equity and elevating local farmers and BIPOC growers. I've introduced key measures to fight the climate crisis through agriculture and through the critical expansion of EV charging infrastructure. And with the catastrophic overturning of Roe v. Wade, I've fought to protect reproductive healthcare and the medical professionals who provide these lifesaving services. This summer, I'm ready to hit the ground running across the district and to work with our community members to lay the foundation for our priorities next session so we can continue to deliver for our region."

Legislation authored by Senator Hinchey that is headed to the Governor's desk is as follows:

EXPANDING HEALTHCARE ACCESS

As the representative of the most rural district in the Senate Majority Conference, where residents generally have fewer healthcare options compared to their urban counterparts, Senator Hinchey has fought to protect and expand access to local health services, including the following bills that are on their way to the Governor's desk for signature. One bill requires SUNY and CUNY to train resident assistants on how to administer Narcan and keep a regular supply in all student housing. Other bills headed to the Governor's desk include legislation to create the Office of Hospice and Palliative Care Access and Quality within the DOH and legislation requiring the DOH to develop and implement a statewide public awareness campaign to promote the utilization of services.

Legislation authored by Hinchey that was recently signed into law would prohibit medical malpractice insurance companies from taking adverse action against a New York medical provider who performs an abortion on a patient whose home state has made abortion illegal.

FIGHTING THE CLIMATE CRISIS

Key bills championed by Senator Hinchey to fight the climate crisis through agriculture, green transportation, and natural resource preservation are on their way to the Governor's desk, including a bill requiring that existing fees collected for siting solar on active agricultural land be put towards state and local farmland protection programs. Another bill, The Electric Vehicle Rights Act, would prevent homeowners associations from prohibiting homeowners from installing an EV charger on their property in most cases. As a major proponent of the climate benefits of industrial hemp, Hinchey authored legislation that encourages businesses to use hemp material for packaging, manufacturing, and other industrial purposes. Hinchey's bill requires Ag & Markets, in coordination with other state agencies, to take a greater leadership role in identifying and promoting innovation opportunities for industrial hemp, which has the potential to be manufactured into tens of thousands of products that could significantly reduce the carbon footprint of plastic production and help New York meet its climate mitigation goals.

Recently, Hinchey's bill to codify the first-ever DEC position of Catskill Park Coordinator in Environmental Conservation Law passed the Senate unanimously. The bill was created to help ensure the protection of Catskill lands and their equitable use.

MAKING IT EASIER TO DO BUSINESS IN NEW YORK

Senator Hinchey is committed to creating an environment in which upstate businesses can thrive. At the beginning of the 2022 Session, Governor Hochul signed a bill sponsored by Senator Hinchey to jumpstart the cultivation of cannabis in New York. Hinchey's legislation created a pathway for existing New York hemp farmers to apply for a conditional license to grow cannabis in the 2022 growing season in order to meet the demand of the forthcoming cannabis market while also creating social equity mentorship opportunities to bring more BIPOC growers into the fold.

As Chair of the Senate Agriculture Committee, Hinchey has advanced significant legislation to increase farm profitability and help usher in a new and diverse generation of agricultural producers. One piece of legislation toward that end, which has been signed into law, doubles the Farm Workforce Retention Tax Credit to $1,200 and extends it through 2026. Another bill, currently on its way to the Governor's desk, expands eligibility for the Young Farmers Loan Forgiveness Incentive Program

Several of Hinchey's bills to help grow burgeoning industries in New York are also on their way to the Governor's desk, including The New York Textile Act, which incentivizes the production of textiles from animal or plant fibers that have been cultivated and processed in New York. Another bill focused on New York's craft beverage industry, allows craft distillers to participate in income-generating activities already permitted for other alcohol producers and legislation to ease labeling requirements for farm breweries.

Bills authored by Senator Hinchey that passed the Senate only this year, and remain a priority for passage in both legislative houses in 2023 are as follows:

- Protecting New Yorkers from Unfair Utility Billing - S9469-HINCHEY

The Senate unanimously passed Senator Hinchey's bill to bring greater reliability and transparency to the utility industry—a bill sparked by the egregious billing errors levied onto the Senator's constituents by companies like Central Hudson. Hinchey's bill prevents utility companies from using estimated billing in most circumstances and requires the Public Service Commission (PSC) to require that all utility companies serving New York submit their current estimated billing formula to the PSC—information that is currently not available to the public. The bill also charges the PSC with developing a model estimation formula that can be used as a utility industry standard in New York.

- The Small Water Utility Transparency Act - S8534-HINCHEY

The Senate passed Senator Hinchey's bill to create the first-ever state audits of private water companies, granting the PSC, DEC, and Comptroller's office greater auditing authority over small private water utilities to ensure these companies are providing community members with safe, adequate, and affordable water service. The bill also increases the fine structure should a water utility be found in violation of its duties and provides DPS with full authority to enforce those fines.

- Accelerating Electric Vehicle Infrastructure - S6692B-HINCHEY

The Senate passed Senator Hinchey's bill to help cut the impact of the state's largest climate emissions contributor—the transportation sector. Hinchey's bill requires gas stations installing new fuel pumps to also install at least one dual EV charging station.

- Supporting Local Food Procurement from New York Farms - S6808A-HINCHEY

The Senate unanimously passed Senator Hinchey's bill to set first-ever food procurement goals for state agencies so that by 2024, 25% of all food purchased by state agencies is food grown by New York farmers.
