This November State Senator Joseph P. Addabbo, Jr.'s large-scale Job Fair is going to be an in-person event once again after having to go virtual for the last two years due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The Senator is partnering with Resorts World Casino NYC and the Queens Chamber of Commerce to bring this Job Fair to the public.

On Friday, November 18, representatives from over 70 companies from across the tristate area will be on hand, all looking for new employees at Resorts World Casino NYC, located at 110-00 Rockaway Boulevard, in South Ozone Park from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to take resumes from jobseekers.

Some of the companies that will be at the job fair include NYC Health + Hospitals, Good Temps, U.S. Army, World Financial Group, Charter Spectrum, Con Edison, NY Helmets to Hardhats, and many more. The Senator's office can provide a full listing of job fair vendors days before the event.

"With the worst of the COVID pandemic behind us many companies are looking for workers, and even more people are in need of work. My Job Fair is the perfect place to bring these two groups together," Addabbo said. "Helping individuals obtain sustainable and satisfying work is one of the most important accomplishments I can have as an elected official. I am thrilled to be able to once again host this Job Fair as an in-person event, and I would like to thank Resorts World and the Queens Chamber of Commerce for their partnership on this important endeavor. I encourage jobseekers of all ages to come visit the Job Fair and see all of the amazing vendors that will be there."

It is recommended that jobseekers come to the Job Fair dressed in business attire and have plenty of copies of their resumes with them to give out to the companies in attendance.

Resorts World has a free parking lot for prospective jobseekers in the lot directly across from the casino entrance, and the building is wheelchair accessible to accommodate everyone.
