Hello, I am Juniper Knaebel and I love Earth Day, but imagine if it could happen every single day except for the celebration. I am going to explain simple ways to make Earth Day every day.

My first way is on a hot day you probably will walk into a store and buy a water bottle. Well, stop right there! Instead, you can bring a water bottle with you or maybe just go to a water fountain. This is very simple and I think that anyone can do it.

My next example is everyone needs clothing and you probably get your clothing from the Gap or Target, but instead you can go to a thrift store. They have all the same stylish clothing as the Gap, it will fit you and it is good for the environment. Thrift stores are not just in brick-and-mortar locations, there are also thrift stores online such as Poshmark and others

When you go to the store and you come out with a lot of stuff you may ask for a bag. Instead, bring a bag with you when you go to the store, because when you keep getting bags from stores and throw them away, it hurts the earth. And it's not just the bags that cause waste. Everyone loves purchasing items, but you should only buy what you need, because if you buy something that you don't like and throw it away, you will hurt the environment that way as well.

Now imagine you are drawing something and you mess up. This does not mean you have to throw away the paper. Instead, you can draw on the back of it, use it as wrapping paper, or make some origami. Every time you throw away a piece of paper you kill a tree.

Now on a cold rainy day you probably want to take a nice long shower. Well, stop there! Instead, shorten down your showers. And while you're at it, turn the faucet off too! If you have a pair of pants that you already used once, that does not mean you have to put them in the wash yet. The less clothing you have in the wash the less water you waste. But, duh, if your pants smell like tuna fish, put them in the washing machine.

Earth Day happens once a year, but if we make it an everyday thing, this world will be much better. We must keep our earth clean because the earth gives us the gift of life. If we don't help earth, humans may become extinct. Well, those are some very easy ways to make Earth Day every day.
