

What I'm Thankful For

Thanksgiving is a day to thank for everything you have. What I'm thankful for is how much my family sacrifices for me. When I was 10 years old I had a big hockey tournament and my parents wanted to be there for me so bad they both took two weeks of work and found someone to take care of my siblings just so they could be there for me. Also they sacrifice vacation every year just so they can pay for me to play hockey every year. The only time they get a long break is when my family takes us on vacation every year in august and I'm thankful for that. Also I'm thankful for my parents saying yes to almost everything I ask for. I get every hockey stick I ask for no matter what the price is or no matter if I need it or not. Some of my friends would kill to have my parents as they told me before. Also the last thing I'm thankful for is everything my parents do for me. If it wasn't for them I wouldn't play hockey, I wouldn't eat dinner every night I wouldn't have clean clothes everyday Also I wouldn't have a place to live because they pay the bills and the money on the house for us to live there. So that is what I'm thankful for on Thanksgiving.
