There are some qualities I have that I am very thankful for are many and many things in this essay. I will go over many of them. One quality I have is having rare genetics some of which are being a lefty which only 11% of people on the earth have has its own advantage like it gives lefties better adaptability and faster typing Another genetic thing i have is a small hole in my right ear which only roughly about 1% of people in the world (I think) have called a ear pit which in my opinion is pretty cool. After going over my genetics I will now go over my talents. One talent I have is adaptability. I adapt to a lot of things like the coldness or in martial arts or playing competitive games. Another talent I have is finding some sort of way to make someone laugh (even sad people). Now I will go over my academic qualities in school that I have some leadership. I usually am the leader of groups when we are working together. I come up with ideas and work them out and it works out. I also have quick problem solving skills when it's needed like the deadline of an assignment is like 9 minutes away from being late so with it I get stuff done when it's needed the most in a group effort. Some physical qualities that I have are strong legs for swimming. I do swimming and I am always the fastest swimmer out of my classmates because of my strong legs. I also do martial arts and I am one of the strongest kids with agility and power. Another quality I have is being a helpful and social person. I always cheer people up with my funny humor and making friends with any random person. This is also in a collaborative team effort. I band the team together to be good working partners with each other. And those are some of the qualities that I have that I am very thankful for as I have cool genetics and good academic skills with talent and lastly I am a social and chill person. (one more honorable mention that isn't really a quality is that just even being human as its very lucky to even be a human it's like winning the lottery for you).
