Thanksgiving Poem

Thanksgiving 2024 has arrived,
Soon to be 2025,
All families gathered around the table,
Consuming turkey as Thanksgiving dinner.

Water dripping down the window
Driving to Brooklyn,
Visiting my cousins that I see rarely,
Shaking my legs in excitement.

I'm so thankful for the life God has given me.
For family, and friends,
And a love cycle that never ends.
I'm also quite thankful for a roof upon me
Food to consume,
And drinks that please my thirst.

I'm so lucky to have all of these amazing things that make up my life.
I'm thankful for Grandpa Joe,
Who loved me all of my life,
And Nana Ray,
Who has poofy hair that I get lost in.

I am also thankful for Grandma Sarah,
Who helps keep the house in order,
And Grandpa Pete
Who is funny, nice, and knows how to run a business.

I forgot to mention my mother and father,
Who work so hard for me to be alive

When it comes to food and drinks,
They have everything I need!

Thankful isn't a strong enough word to describe
The way my education strives,
Always getting A's
And keeping my thinking cap on.
For my teachers who teach me everything I need to know
From my ABC's
To my SAT's.

I'm thankful as well for my amazing cousin Gabby
Who is my blood bestie
She hangs out with me all the time,
And helps me out when I need her.

On a religious term,
I'm thankful the guardian angels watching over me
And all the angels and saints living in beloved Heaven upon us
Jesus who died on the cross to save us from sin
And Mary, who made our savior Jesus from her own womb.

I hope you enjoyed my poem about what I am thankful for when it comes to Thanksgiving!
