

What I Am Thankful For Poem

Time is very precious. You never know when you can run out of time. Someday it will be the last time you are doing something, and you may never know it. This is why time is precious. You cannot reverse, nor buy time. I am very thankful to be living and still having my time on earth, I try not to take my time for granted.

House, my house is something many people wish to have. It has roofs and walls and protects me. It gives me a place to sleep at night. It is a warm place. Many people aren't grateful for their homes, but there are people on the streets with no homes who would wish to have a place to stay. This is why my house is very important to me.

Alessia, My sister who I am very grateful for. She is a friend who will always be there in my life. Although we can get into arguments and fights, we still care for each other and hold memories. My sister is very kind and I love her.

Nature, the beautiful and peaceful side of life. People are so used to technology and never appreciate nature. It is filled with wondrous adventures and sights to see. Many different varieties of plants, animals, and ecosystems. Nature is amazing and a pure side of life.

Knowledge, I am grateful for my knowledge which has grown because of my education. I am very grateful to be able to do things I can do and achieve my goals in school.

Family, I am very grateful for my family , who loves me, cares for me, works to be able to afford necessities for me. They provide for me and love me. Each day I come home from school I think about how hardworking my family is, how kind and caring each member is.

Unbeatable, a perfect word to describe my little sister Dayana. She is very cute and kind. Her smile warms up a whole room. The day she said my name will always have a place in my heart. Dayana makes me feel happy in times of stress, whenever I am stressed and I come home from school she runs up to me and hugs me while laughing. She is just a bundle of pure Joy, always smiling, and always spreading her smiles.

Laughter, the moment that holds many memories in the minds of people. It can be spent when talking to your family. It is positive and can make us feel happy and connected with the ones we are laughing with. Laughter shares brief moments of relaxation and pleasure.

I spend my time laughing with my friends about funny topics, enjoying ourselves and with my family, creating memories that make me feel happy.

Loyal, a perfect word to describe all of my friends. My friends are loyal because they care for me, and stand up for me in times of need. When I need help with something I am always assured that they will help me. My friends look out for me. I know that they will always be there for me, and they know that I will always be there for them.
