

What I Am Thankful For

I am grateful for my mom, friends, and the stray cat outside my house. I am grateful for my mom because she helps me with my homework, I am grateful for my friends because I like spending time with them, and I am grateful for the stray cat outside my house because I like petting her. I am very grateful for them in my life, and I am glad that my family decided to move to Cortland. Now I will tell you the details about the things and people I am grateful for.

Firstly, I am grateful for my mom because she helps me with my homework when I ask her. Whenever there is a question on my homework that makes my brain want to die, I ask her for help, and she shows me steps on how to solve the question (it's always math homework). She helps me find tutorials on youtube on how to do certain methods to find the answer to difficult math problems. If she can't find a tutorial, she will try to teach me herself. I am also grateful for her because she makes the best pasta ever, and I love her food.

Secondly, I am grateful for my friends because they are always fun to be around and to talk to. I feel safe to talk about my problems with them. I love spending time with them and talking to them because I like talking. Also, they sometimes give me their food at lunch when I ask because I get extra hungry. My friend and I like to listen to our favorite song at lunch (she found out about the song because I told her about it). Jenny likes to listen to Micheal Jackson, and we always bicker about what song is the best one.

Lastly, I am grateful for the stray cat outside my house because she is fluffy, chunky, and I love to pet her. She is a calico cat. She always comes to my house and waits for me to come home from school every day. Last week, my dad bought a cat house for her so she could be comfortable. She is always sleeping in her cat house even when I call for her, but she is still sound asleep. She loves getting pets. She tries to grab my leg when I want to go inside my house so that I don't leave.

In conclusion, these are the things and people I am grateful for. I love spending time with them a lot. I want to hug the stray cat so badly, but she hates being hugged and carried.
