

Abigail's Qualities

Hello, my name is Abigail DiBartolomeo and I'm a part of the Sixth grade at Bouquet Valley Central School. I love to play sports like soccer and softball, but I also have other hobbies such as reading and writing my book. When I am out of college, I would like to own a company. At the moment, I think I have really good qualities for running a business. These qualities include creativity, and being funny and wise. Here is why I am thankful for those qualities

Being wise is a skill I show with quick thinking but also by taking my time to think things through. One of the reasons being wise is useful would be that I can get out of sticky situations if I need to. That would also be helpful as an adult when I hire someone because I will have to be able to find the person best fit for the job. Not only that, but I would have to price products, fire employees, and run the company smoothly and efficiently. This skill can improve me by making it easier for me to make the right choice when I need to think on my feet.

Having a good sense of humor is shown on me through my jokes I use in an attempt to lift spirits. I'm thankful I have this quality because it makes me feel good to make someone's day a little brighter. This is good for when I'm older because if I seem like a robot then my employees won't want to offer suggestions that might improve the company. My jokes might be inspiration for someone else's jokes so they can make the world a bit better too. This can help me improve by making me a better person that makes people happy.

Having a creative mind is something that I have and is very useful for many things. From running a company to being an author. I am thankful that I am creative because all my inspiration for everything comes from my creativity. Creativity is a useful skill for the future because if I become an author creativity is how I would develop a world for our characters. Creativity can help me improve by being more thoughtful and even build my empathetic skills.

I am a complex person; after all, everyone is. These qualities only scratch the surface to understanding me. I'm glad everyone is different. We should all take time to think about who we are and appreciate it. On that note, I conclude my essay. Thank you for reading.
