

Thanksgiving Day Showcase

As thanksgiving approaches, I would like to share two qualities, or privileges in my life that I am thankful for. During your lifetime, you will meet many people, people always come and go but your faithful friends will always stay. This is why I am thankful for my friends, who have been with me through thick & thin, and have never left my side. I am also extremely thankful for one of my favorite qualities about myself, my sense of humor, which aided in me making the friends I have today. Cherish what is important to you, you never know when you might not have them anymore.

Friends are your chosen family. If you do not feel comfortable around them, or if you believe you cannot be yourself around them, replace them. Friends should always be there for you; they are rock hard shoulders you could rely on. Whenever I feel down, my friends are always there for me. They always comfort me and brighten my mood. My friends notice when I am sad, yet they also make me happy. When you are with your friends, you should be having fun, not worrying about anything stressing you. That is why I am thankful for my chosen family, my friends.

Having a sense of humor could either make you or break you. Although some people might find you annoying, through your humor you can find people you love you for who you are, your loyal friends. Your humor helps you connect to people who relate with you, and who truly find you funny. My humor helps me to be easily sociable; it introduces me to many people, and I am very thankful for it. I can always find light in a dark situation, and I do not get offended quite easily. That is why I am thankful for my sense of humor; I would not be myself without it.

Cherish what you have, you never know when you are going to lose it. I cherish my friends, and my sense of humor. These 2 things help me to be the best version of myself that I could be. I would not be the same person without them. Stay thankful for the people around you who support you, and the qualities you may relate to and share with them. Take advantage of what you have; they are privileges and gone be gone with any mistake. To end this essay off, I would like to ask, what are you thankful for?