Thanksgiving

by Mia Bakmah

The first Thanksgiving feast was three days. Each year 96 million turkeys are cooked. On Thanksgiving my family and I get together and eat turkey. I am so thankful that I get to have my family, basic needs, and my Jewish identity.

I am thankful for my family because they are there for me when I need them and they provide food and water for me.

My parents take me on fun vacations. They entertain my brother and I by planning play dates for us, taking us to interesting places such as museums and arcades. They also teach us great values.

This Thanksgiving I'm thankful for my Jewish identity. I'm grateful that I go to a Jewish day school because it teaches me how important my religion is. Especially during times like now when Jewish people are struggling around the world, I'm thankful that Jewish people are united and help each other during this difficult time.

Thanksgiving reminds me to appreciate the things I have that other people may not have. I am thankful that I get to enjoy turkey and pie with my family. Also I get to go to cool Thanksgiving places like a Pumpkin Patch or Thanksgiving Parade.
