

Thankful for Positive Attributes

What qualities in people am I thankful for? There are so many different people in the world and that means there are so many different kinds of people to make friends with. The kinds of attributes that someone has determines the kind of person they are. Some attributes that I look for in people are kindness, empathy, and ambitions. These are great attributes in a person.

Someone who is empathetic will feel things for people. They notice when someone needs help. When they are in a position where it's possible to help, they offer it. An empathetic person would empathize with someone and their feelings. They understand that it's outside their perspective and they don't have it as an issue in their life and yet they still try to understand it, and help.

Someone who is kind will do things out of their way to help someone else. If there is a person who needs help, someone who is kind would help them even if it inconveniences them. They find joy in helping people. One of their favorite things to do is to help someone and make their day a little bit better. Kindness is about seeing an opportunity to help someone and taking it. It is easy to be kind because you're given opportunities every day for it. They do simple things like holding a door open or helping someone carry something just to brighten their day.

Someone who is ambitious will strive to reach their goals. They have goals for what they want in life. They push themselves to achieve what they want and in-turn push you to achieve your goals. They get excited over their achievements and enjoy their achievements so much.

Having people in your life that have these qualities in themselves is great. Someone who is kind, empathetic, and ambitious is a great person and an even better friend. In the end I am thankful for my family and my friends who have always cared about me and loved me. When a person has these qualities they not only make themselves a better person, but they also inspire and push other people to meet better standards.

– Liliana Thompson