

My God Allah has given me many gifts and blessings. This essay is about me expressing gratitude to Allah. This is because Allah is continuously giving me countless and wonderful blessings even though I don't deserve them.

My God Allah has given me very precious blessings. Some of these blessings include: my parents, my religion Islam, and my school Andalusia. I am grateful for my parents because when I am in need or in any doubt or trouble, my parents help me fight through it. In addition, my parents spend a lot of money on my behalf buying clothes, shoes, and even gifts. Finally, I thank my parents for bringing me to Andalusia school because without them I wouldn't know about my religion Islam or my holy book the Quran.

In addition, I am also grateful for Islam because Islam teaches me hundreds of lessons on how to live a normal perfect Islamic life style. Islam teaches me that God is with us every day and night waiting for us to ask for repentance. Furthermore, Islam teaches me that family is the most important thing in life; without family, you wouldn't have anyone constantly giving you support. Finally, Islam teaches me that even the smallest deeds like smiling or helping your mom with the grocery can lead you step by step to paradise.

Finally, I am grateful for learning in Andalusia school. This is because I can learn in an Islamic environment and have friends that are Muslim. I enjoy having friends as Muslims because me and my friends can remind each other to pray and to make repentance towards Allah. In addition, the teachers at Andalusia are really: awesome, sweet, and always reach out to you when you are in need. Furthermore, during assembly we get to remember Allah and all the blessings and favors he gave us. The best thing I love about Andalusia is that we learn about Islam, the Quran, and the Arabic language every day and the teachers always apply Islam to our basic subjects.

These are just some of the amazing gifts and blessings Allah gave me in my life. Because Allah gave me all these gifts, I express great gratitude towards him. For all that he has given me and for what I am destined to receive from my Lord Allah.
