

THANKSGIVING ESSAY Grace Helschein

10/13/16

Thanksgiving is soon, a time to spend time with family, eat turkey and a time to think about what you are thankful for, I am thankful for my education, my family and friends these things are very important to me.

I am thankful for my education. It is important to have an education because one day you are going to need math, language arts or science. It is also important because in school you learn to read and reading is important because reading is all around use like speed limits on the road and you will never be able to enjoy a good book. We also have math and math is everywhere like in the stores or cooking. You will also not get a good job if you don't go to school. That's why education is important and why I am appreciative for it.

Family is also a good thing to be grateful for because a lot of people don't have a good family, some don't even have a family so I am so glad to have a big family that loves and supports each other. Some families can be mean and not even see each other sometimes or not have enough money to feed their kids some kids live in an orphanage waiting for a family to adopt them some kid live in an orphanage till they were able to live on their own. that is why I am thankful for my family

Friends is another thing that I am appreciative for. It is good to have friends because they always will help you in the hardest times they always have your back. Some people don't have a friend who really needs one everyone needs a friend. you always need a friend to hang out with or talk, they will never put you in a bad mood and they will cheer you up at any time. that is why I think being thankful for having friends is important.

Thanksgiving is important because you get to take time and think about what you are thankful for. Will you think about what you are thankful this year, I know I am.
